

Novartis Country President shares outlook for 2022 – “Digital healthcare’s moment”

Jan 11, 2022

In a recent Sunday Times article by Nick Webb, Leading Lights of Industry Share their Outlook for 2022, Novartis Ireland General Manager and Country President Audrey Derveloy shared her view.

Audrey’s outlook: The pharma industry was an important partner to the healthcare system during the pandemic, contributing solutions such as vaccines and digital tools. Covid showed the fragility of the healthcare system. With this trend set to continue in 2022, we hope the pharma industry can play a central role in providing multi-stakeholder solutions to healthcare system challenges like Covid and chronic disease. Governments will continue to see the economic importance of investing in healthcare. 2022 is digital healthcare’s moment, the impetus for data science, AI and digital solutions to improve patients’ health, will grow.
