Mexico

Summary

The Management Reporting Analyst is mainly accountable for three areas of deliverables: ensure alignment between the technical team and global FRA, continuous improvement/standardization of reporting solutions and finally ensuring timely and accurate reporting.

The role of the Management Reporting Analyst will be to support the maintenance, the control, the execution, and the accuracy of reporting solutions using SAP technologies such as BI and BPC. The applications are primarily used to provide data insights to different levels of management such as FRA heads and BPAs to support management decision making. These solutions contain financial data for dedicated markets (eg US financials) or dedicated teams (eg global FRA financials).

The analyst will be responsible to ensure these tools are correctly maintained to ensure accurate calculations, inputs from the users and reports for monthly reporting. S/He should assist the organization to enhance reporting capabilities. S/He will also have the responsibility to deliver the required customer support. S/He should facilitate the organization to manage financial and reporting deadlines and drive productivity via reporting excellence, supporting users throughout this process. S/He will also need to be flexible to enable cross team and country support as well as support different applications.
