

Novartis appoints Sloan Simpson as Global Head of Investor Relations

Feb 16, 2024

Novartis announced today that Sloan Simpson has been appointed Global Head of Investor Relations, reporting to CFO Harry Kirsch, effective April 1, 2024. Sloan succeeds Samir Shah, a respected leader, who significantly contributed to Novartis investor relations excellence for over a decade.

In her new role, Sloan will continue to advance the Novartis equity story, lead the team responsible for engaging with the global investment community, and work closely with the Executive Committee of Novartis.

Sloan joined Novartis in 2015, and has worked across Investor Relations and Corporate Strategy in the US and Switzerland. She has held the position of North America Head of Investor Relations since 2019. Prior to Novartis, Sloan worked in consulting, primarily on financial communications and investor relations in the healthcare industry. She holds a bachelor's degree from Princeton University.

We welcome Sloan to her new role and are confident her leadership will continue to enhance Novartis engagement with the investment community, building on the strong foundation established by Samir. We are grateful for Samir's significant achievements and look forward to his continued contributions within Novartis.

Source URL: <https://prod1.novartis.com/news/novartis-appoints-sloan-simpson-global-head-investor-relations>

List of links present in page

1. <https://prod1.novartis.com/news/novartis-appoints-sloan-simpson-global-head-investor-relations>